THEY ARE SATISFIED.

KICKAPOOS AT LAST LISTEN TO REASON.

They Will Take Their Allotments and Money—The Work of Allotting to be Begun This Week—Opening About April 1, 1894.

Tomorrow morning Major Moses Neal, the Kickapoo allotting agent, will begin the work of allotting lands to the Kickapoo Indians. He was in Oklahoma City the other day, and, according to the Times-Journal, he has at last succeeded in making the Indians come to terms.

For two or three weeks he has been working with the Indians endeavoring to get them to listen to reason, and at times became almost discouraged at their stubbornness and sullen behavior, but finally one after another came over to his side until now he has a majority of the tribe on the allotting rolls. He says Big Jim's band of Shawnees have made him most of the trouble by sending emissaries to the Kickapoos advising them not to sign. Little Battie Ax, one of the chief men of that band, was exceedingly troublesome and Mr. Neal had to send him home and forbid his return. Big Jim's band gave trouble when Col. Porter was allotting the absentee Shawnees and Pottawatomies and refused to take their allotments until the very last.

Major Neal thinks the Kickapoos now number about 250—bunks, squaws and paposes. They will each be entitled to some $200 in money and eighty acres of land. The allotments will consume about one township of the reservation, leaving eight townships, or nearly 175,000 acres, to be opened to settlement. He estimates that the work of allotting will take ninety days or more, and if there are any obstreperous Indians left after all the voluntary are made, thirty days more will be consumed before the work is entirely completed; so it will be March or April before the surplus land can be opened to settlement. The country has been sectioned but not divided into quarters and eighths, and in many cases the section corners have been destroyed, so that the work will be quite difficult without a complete resurvey. This resurvey is the only remaining one to be opened to settlement in eastern Oklahoma and, while small, every foot of it is desirable and it will make a thousand or fifteen hundred very valuable and productive farms. The rush for it will be far greater in proportion than was for the strip lands, for there will be from fifty to one hundred men for every claim. Look out for the opening about April 1, 1894.

SIDE GLANCES.

Said a merchant yesterday: "The outlook for Guthrie is very promising. The farmers of Oklahoma were never in better shape than at present, and as agriculture is the basis of prosperity Guthrie is bound to harmonize with the condition."

"The musical instrument called the jewsharp, once very popular among the negroes of the South and mentioned by a doubtful chronicler as one of two instruments that Connecticut Puritans might lawfully play on Sunday, was really not named in honor of the Jews. It was once called the jews trumpet, or toy trumpet, and the name jewsharp is the result of a popular misapprehension."

"Well, sir," remarked a Harrison Avenue druggist last night, "as many as ten cocaine heads have called here within the past two hours and loaded up. I can't understand it. Cocaine is a drug that is becoming very popular. But I can't understand the rush."

Fire Chief Taylor has placed thousands of dollars belonging to capitalist Kabiner of St. Louis, in this city. The money has gone into the new brick buildings and more will be put into contemplated blocks.

Devout people as well as those not inclined that way, are afforded another opportunity to hear good speaking and sweet singing today. All the churches will be opened and strangers are always welcome.

The closing of the Y. M. C. A. in this city will not be a drawing card towards inducing christian parents with young sons to locate in Guthrie. The association rooms should be reopened.

Yesterday was a day for the dumps; gloomy, gloomy and depressing; it was a dismal space in which to take morphine injections, commit suicide or murder a mother-in-law. It had the drag of a drouth, the sombreness of a funeral, the weariness of an eternity. The air was neither eager nor nipping, but dull and oppressive. It would have been a day for a Pop election. There was nothing bright in it or to it except at its close, when the sun rolled out a flood of light just as it bowed out of sight over a western verge of desolation and mud. The smile left the face of youth, the hand organ on the street corner ground out its unending wail and despondency reigned supreme. It is said there is a greater number of sunny days in Oklahoma than anywhere, but it is equally as certain that her cloudy days are the cloudiest.

Here's a kick from an indignant lady: "I wish the newspapers would roast the street loafers and the police follow up the roast with the command to move on. A loafer is alright in his place, but Guthrie possesses a lot of idle fellows who stand on the streets to oggle the women and cover the walls with their tobacco juice for the ladies to drag their skirts through. It makes me mad. Great, big, blabbering idiots standing around smoking, spewing and spitting. How a merchant can have a gang of loafers hang around his store, spitting on the walks and boxes and expect ladies to trade at his store, is really more than I can comprehend."

There are three articles in the Forum for this month on "Is Christianity Losing Ground?" And its authors, Prof. Briggs, Felix Adler and Dr. Carnes declare that it is, and yet admit that the fundamental principles of Christianity are all the time finding truer expression. Their talk is in strange contrast with a sermon by the learned Dr. Talmage when he opened his tabernacle this fall and held an audience of over 5,000 spell-bound as he showed the advance of Christianity by actual statistics—told how the Methodists are building two churches daily and that the tide is so strong that infidelity is far less bold than formerly. These points are a good deal as we desire them to be. Why don't these people who object to religion and churches, stop fussing and go to some part of the country where there are none and form a colony of their own?

GOVERNOR'S GREETING.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION ISSUED BY GOV. RENFROW.

Thursday, November 29th. Set apart by the Chief Executive on which the People of the Territory May Offer Thanks

The following proclamation was yesterday issued by Governor William C. Renfrow:

BY THE GOVERNOR OF THE TERRITORY OF OKLAHOMA—A PROCLAMATION.

The people of Oklahoma especially have reason to be thankful and grateful to the Giver of All Good for abundant prosperity since the creation of our marvelous Territory. While during the past year there has been some financial and commercial disaster have brought ruin and distress to many counties, the people of Oklahoma have enjoyed the most healthy and happy and the bright sunshine of prosperity.

In remembrance and in gratitude for the many blessings that as a people have enjoyed, I, William C. Renfrow, Governor of the Territory of Oklahoma, do set apart Thursday the 29th day of November, current, as a day of Thanksgiving and recommend to the people of the Territory that on that day they abstain from all secular pursuits and devote the entire day to the service of God and to the service of their fellow men, and that the churches of our Territory be opened and that the churches of our Territory be opened and that the churches of our Territory be opened.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the Territory of Oklahoma to be hereunto affixed. Done at Guthrie this 15th day of November, 1894. WILLIAM C. RENFROW, Governor. THOMAS J. LANE, Secretary.

IN MEMORIAM.

Tribute to the Late George Jasper from the Pen of General Jamison.

The following tribute to the late George Jasper, assistant secretary of the territory, was received from General Jamison, register of deeds of K county. The general and the deceased were close personal friends. The memorial is printed in full:

EDITOR LEADER:
 In the multiplicity of life and popular activities that enter into and make up the individual character of every son and daughter of Adam and Eve there is, it is said, portrayed in some sort of way, some quality that distinguishes him from others and respects. Was this the case in the character and personality of the late George A. Jasper, assistant secretary of the territory? Speaking as a personal friend of the late assistant secretary, I think not. It was that sort of personality that came as near to the unapproachable standard as human nature with all its imperfections and frailties might approach. In him, though impossible of perfection, were united those human qualities that give and retain our comradeship even under the most trying circumstances. George A. Jasper was in position that put him into human character a model man. The small frailties that only too often blur our lives entered not into his composition. He was conscientious in every act, direct and thoughtful, and no matter how tempting the inducement both his judgment and conscience and to agree with him. He loved justice and truth, and to them he was welded with letters as durable as the stars of the firmament in the heavens. He was a man of peace, of peace which awaited the honest and conscientious in the untold ages hereafter.

He is a sad and unrelenting subject for contemplation under any all circumstances, but when the good and our nearness to him are taken into consideration, the picture is doubly sad, and our hearts respond in the saddest sympathy to the death of a man whose virtues we can not fathom or understand, but whose memories compass the whole human race.

The death of this good man, young, full of hope and with the brightest prospects invitingly before him, with warm and earnest hearts clinging closely to him in his young manhood, hopeful of him and his future, is a sad blow to us who are left to mourn his loss, and no poor words of ours can fully express our regret for the loss of a man whose virtues we can not fathom or understand, but whose memories compass the whole human race.

We can look behind us and the scroll of events unfolds its pages as we turn the leaves of a book, but what of the future? Not a messenger hails you from the skies or beyond the waters. In the inscrutable wisdom of nature it seemed best that our vision should be limited, and doubtless man is the happier for it and as it has been written so let it be.

The veil which covers the face of futurity was woven by the hand of Mercy. See not, therefore, to raise that veil, but address might be won to the brother which, fairly had arrayed in smiles of gladness.

When this veil shall be rolled aside, if ever, George Jasper will not be among the missing.

J. C. JAMISON.

A KANGAROO VICTIM.

Robert Tyffel's Hard Luck—Fined by the Prisoners in Jail.

Robert Tyffel was discharged from jail yesterday after having served a sentence of ten days for selling whisky in the Osage country. Tyffel is a young man and is hard of hearing. After being released he was penniless and several court officials made up a subscription purse for his benefit. Upon being placed in jail, young Tyffel had $2 on his person. He was tried by a kangaroo court in the federal jail, found guilty of "breaking into the jail," and fined $2. Tyffel claims he was walking through the Osage country with a half gallon of whisky in his pocket. "Had I known the result, I wouldn't have done it," remarked the young culprit plaintively.

The Difference.

Norman Call: The difference between the strip opening and the opening of Oklahoma, lies in the disposition of the two administrations to punish official fraud. If all that has been said about the fraud practiced in the strip opening be true, it is scarcely to be compared with the practices of illegal character at the land office in Guthrie when Oklahoma was opened. The experience of the first made the last more acute. Residents of Norman remember how, at the Guthrie land office, the fakers would number the fliers and mark those who paid with a couple of matches in a hat band. The attention of the officials was called to the frauds being practiced, yet they made no effort to correct them or prosecute the guilty. Parties in our town personally called the attention of T. B. Needles, then U. S. Marshal, to the frauds, but he did nothing. Some of the newspapers that are howling about prosecuting the guilty were most depressed ly quiet at that time. We believe it is the intention of this administration to punish all who can be proven guilty of frauds in the strip opening.

FOILED BY A BRAVE MAN.

A Desperate Attempt to Rob a Cleveland Bank but Meets His Match. CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 11.—Shortly after noon to-day, a stranger entered the office of Myron T. Herriek, treasurer of the Society of Savings, and asked for a private interview. He was poorly dressed, but no different in all respects from scores of men who call daily. Herriek took him into the trustees' room and the man closed the door.

Just as Herriek started to take a seat the man said: "I want some money and I want you to give it to me now. No you can't go into the vault and give me $500.00. I'll go with you and the clerks in the banking house will think you are showing me the vaults."

The stranger quickly drew a revolver from his pocket and thrust the muzzle against Herriek's head. "If you don't do that," he continued, "I'll blow you up. I have a charged dynamite in my other hand and I'll blow us both up."

Herriek promptly struck the man in the face, knocking him down. The robber sprang to his feet, shot at Herriek and sprang out of an open window into the street. The ball passed through the right side of Herriek's coat.

The robber has not been found.
